

Special Education Compliance Made Easy

with Athlos Special Education Logs

A comprehensive solution for special education administrators to achieve special education compliance

Athlos Special Education Logs is designed to support more efficient special education compliance, reporting, oversight, and accountability for K-12 special education directors and administrators.

Our mobile and web-optimized app helps teachers more efficiently track the services they are providing students and ensures administrators are able to monitor the services provided site or district-wide.

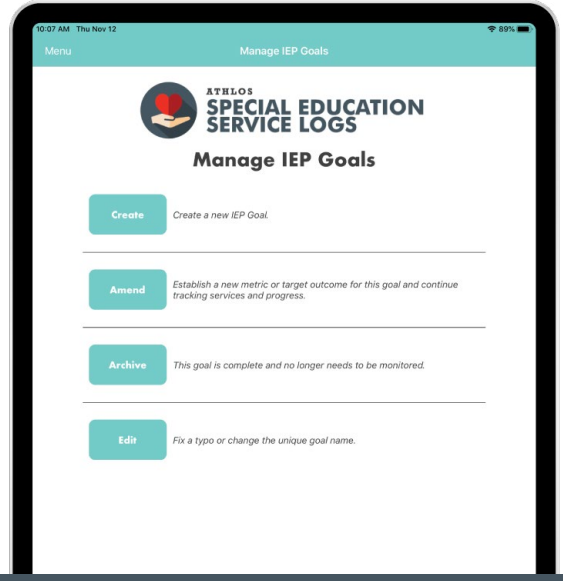

With the Athlos Special Education Logs App, administrators have real time access to interactive dashboards for streamlined oversight.

Intended for use by special education teachers, service providers, and special education departments, the app records service minutes and progress toward IEP goals and provides real time data dashboards to track and share progress with key stakeholders. This supports special education compliance in a number of ways.

Ensuring Equitable Special Education Services

Ensuring adequate services and progress for special education students is the ultimate aim of every special education department around the country.

The Athlos Special Education Logs app supports state departments and districts in their efforts to remain compliant and ensure all services are equitable and being provided in accordance with each special education student's IEP.

Athlos knows that accurately tracking IEP services and progress monitoring is key for special education compliance. With the Athlos app, special education teachers can log services and progress easier than ever before, and administrators have real time access to interactive, printable dashboards for streamlined oversight and reporting.

Teachers and service providers can more easily do their jobs, and schools can maintain higher accountability standards to ensure all students are receiving the appropriate services.
